Listing Description :

Two terraced rows of 16 and 14 (30 in total) dwellings, built of marland brick with red brick embellishments including string courses and doorway arches. Each unit has a hipped ground floor bay window next to a doorway with pointed arch above. Above the doorway is a narrow window, with a wider window above the bay. The eaves are supported on corbels and the slate roof is punctuated by a dormer window in the centre of a units' elevation, a matching dormer is found on the rear elevation. The units are arranged in pairs with a pair of doors adjacent to each other followed by a pair of bays and another pair of doors and so on.
Sash windows survive more often on the rear elevation. Rear single storey gabled wings with tall chimneys, these are braced by pairs of iron ties affixed to the eaves line of the main building.
